The Case of Copper.

Copper mining seems to be fully as great a floston success as ever; indeed the annual report of the Calumet & Hecla company which stockholders receive today shows that for the fiscal year end ed April 30, 1896, $25 per share, or $2,-500,000, was distursed in dividends, and the surplus of assets over liabilities was increased by $1,683,000 for the year to the comfortable balance to carry forward of $6,000,000. This statement figures copper on hand and not sold at 8% cents only, whereas the market today is 11 cents, and the great company probably would have no difficulty in converting all of its stock of the metal on hand into cash at 10 cents or better. Long before the nineteenth century ends the Calumet and Hecla will have passed the $50,000 .-000 mark in total of dividends disbursed since the discovery of the famous lode in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. As there are but 100,000 shares of the stock the profits of this company are remarkable and the shares sell for twelve times their par value, or $300. Even at that they return 8 per cent on the investment with the $25 per share dividend pay ment of the last fiscal year. When the enormous increase of production of the metal of late years is considered—the Calumet increased from 62,400,000 to 85. 500,000 pounds in the year just endedit may seem strange that such profitable results should attend the mining of the same, but here is something for silverites in our coinage. It is a money metal. There is no claim that the intrinsic value of the copper in a cent piece is one cent; 11 cents will buy a pound of the metal and a few years ago it was quoted as low as 9 cents per pound temporarily. At the time of "theorime of 1873" it sold as high as 35 cents per pound; during that fateful year it fell to 20 cents, and it has kept on downwards ever since, with occasional intervals for rest and refreshment, so to speak, furnished by the French syndicate of more or less happy memory, by occasional pools and combinations and by the developments of electrical industry, in which the metal plays as important part. But the point cannot be disguised that this money metal has suffered since 1878 a shrinkage in price from as high as 35 cents and an average for that year of 29 cents per pound to 11 cents, today. This is not right, for had gold not advanced would not supper command more money today? Why should not something be done to rehabilitate copper? The fact that the modern mining plant enables profitable production and larger dividends to producing companies than in the old days of 35 cents per pound ought to have no weight. As with silver, the world a production of the metal has tripled and more since the "crime," but what of that" Let the holders of Calumet and Hecla and Boston & Montana demand the restoration of the good old price of 35 cents, even if the government have to take the copper of the world at large at that price. In the days before the war there was more copper in a cent by far than there is now; the old coin contained pretty nearly a cent's worth of copper, by what crime was the size of the cent reduced? Let us have the old "brum," and with it a return to old conditions of price of the metal. True, silver is "precious" and copper is base, but they both are commodities of world-wide use, and if the base metal could suffer a 70 per cent diminution in about the matter. price since 1873 and still repay richly the miners, cannot the other get along on its merits without pleading the "baby-act" as d foreing the government to restore by arbitrary flat a valuation utterly outgrown by the increuse of production?-

Calumet Firemen Arrive Home Saturday.

Not Satisfied With the Result

Other Items of Interest Picked Up About the Metropelts of the Cepper Country.

The firemen got home from Sault Ste. Marie Saturday and the tournament was the sole subject of talk about town vesterday. The boys say that Chase Osborne, candidate for the republican nomination for congress, used his influence (and it went a long way) to favor Ironwood and to shut out the entire copper country. First they gave Ironwood the tournament for next year and then they saw that Ironwood got as many prizes as possible.

The Calumet team says that everybody except the judges wanted Hancock to have the prize for the best appearing team and it was also conceded that Cal umet's representative in the ladder climbing race was the winner, for his time was a second faster than that of the Ironwood man who was given the prize This is also the opinion of the Hancock and other copper country teams. They are all at points with Osborne and he has made a personal enemy of almost every fireman who attended from the copper country. In most of the other races the team was defeated honestly and they have no complaint to make and are not wasting time making excuses. It was done by better men and they have found out their weaknesses and will endeavor to correct them next year.

Once again J. Edward George has "hung their banners on the outer wall, announcing the forthcoming appearance here of their minstrel company. The company is a large and very expensive one, consisting of the nighest salaried and best obtainable artists, who will unite their efforts in presenting an exposition of minstrelsy that will be an movation! High class has always been the lofty ideal of minstrelsy, and nothing has been left undone or overlooked to have it remain in that proud position. In attending a performance of the "Magnificent' the general public are never in doubt as to whether it will be a good or mediocre entertainment; for they know full well that it is an organization of reliability, whose every promise is kept to the letter, and they are satisfied, the performance will be first class. Marvelous Results. From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunferman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction, she was brought down with pneumonia, succeeding lagrippe. Copper is a metal produced in the Terrible paroxysms of coughing would United States and used to some extent last hours with little interruption, and it for sale cheap, if taken at once Apply MUTUAL AID Terrible paroxysms of coughing would cemed as if she could not survive them. Card of Thanks.

The past week has taken from me a eloved husband, thus bringing home to ne the truth of the words, "in the midst of life we are in death," to those friends who, by their kind acts, sympathzed with me in my awful and sudden bereavement, I offer all I can, my thanks, and hasten to assure them their kindness will never be forgotten. Also would I return thanks to the members of the Order Sons of St. George and to those who sent the flowers.

Effic Etaine Hext.

Calumet people will be favored by an entertainment of more than ordinary excellence on Monday evening, the 19th, when Effie Elaine Hext will appear at the Opera House in her selections and posings. Miss Hext is a first-class elecutionist and has received very flattering press notices all along the line. Besides her numbers, a program by local talent will be rendered. A well known traveling man says that the entertainment by Miss Hext is far above the average. Reserved sents are on sale at the City drug store.

A paper in McClure's Magazine for August will tell, for the first time, the true story of Lincoln's first meeting with Stanton. They met in the trial of the famous McCormic-reaper patent right case, under circumstances that were very humiliating to Lincoln, and many wild tales have been told of their meeting. The exact facts of it are now given by two men who were associated with them in the trial, and who are probably the only persons now living who know all

Mr. Dodge, vice master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, will arrive here Monday, August 10, and will hold an open meeting for all railroad men, union and non-union. All railroad men should make it a point to attend the meeting in St. George's Hall at 8:15 this S. Cocking, Secretary.

How the Present Reigning Family Came to the Throne In Russia. During the long civil wars in Russia which followed the extinction of the Rurik dynasty, imperial title was still claimed by upstart usurper crars. In 1613 a new dy-masty was chosen, to put an end to the rule of pretenders. Michael Romanoff, the son of Philaret, the metropolitan of Rostoff, was elected by a kind of states general convoked for the purpose. There had been va-rious candidates, but a letter, said to be written by Philaret, having been placed before the assetably, which was conclud in terms advocating constitutional govern-ment, the son of that church dignitary was elected. The letter said that the assembly ought not to confer irresponsible power upon the monarch whom they would appoint, but that the legislative power should be divided between the exar, the house of boyars and the states general. The oath imposed upon Michael Romanoff was therefore to the effect that he should either decree laws, nor declare war, nor onclude treaties of peace or alliance, no iniliet capital punishment or confiscation of property upon any person except with the assent of the boyars and the parliament. Afterward this letter, when it had served its purpose, was declared to be a forgery A few years later the young ezar ordered the charter of 1613 to be destroyed and to be replaced by another, in which it was laid down that Michael Romanoff was elected ezar and "autocrat" of all the Russias. Gradually the convocation ever of a merely consultative assembly became less and less frequent. Finally its exist ence was altogether done away with. Aft er 1682 no convocation took place an a mere temporary object. It is to these sporadic cases of states goneral, if they may be called so, and to a char ter enshrouded in some historical doubt that Russian Liberals have in our time, low and then, referred as to a precedent At least they did so in writings publish broad. Russian censorship having forbid der the subject to be touched upon at all, den the subject to be touched upon at all, Peter I, Catherine I, Peter II, Anne, Eliz-abeth, Peter III, Catherine II, Paul I, Alexander I, Nicholas I, Alexander II, Alexander III, all ruled on the strict autocratic principle, which Niebolas II is still bent upon continuing. Peter I the Great enlarged upon it by extending the liability to corporal punishment from the nobility to the imperial family itself. He had hi own sisters whipped. He put his own sor to the torture, who died from it. He, too took a delight in chepping off the heads of a row of political offenders while quading brandy between each fatal stroke of hi reddened axe. It was sultanism with a vengeance.—Fortnightly Review.

e no Steals the Bibles?

Although nearly all the passenger cars running out of Chicago have little everhead racks marked "Read and Return," few of these racks contain Bibles, as they used to. The explanation is that the Bibles disappeared so systematically that the American Bible society discontinued furnishing them, believing that they could employ their money in fields in which it would be more appre ciated. The suggestion has been mad that the Bibles be attached to the ear with chains, as city directories are in drug stores and hotels, but the idea of chain ing down a Bible is so incongruous that it has met with little favor.-Chicago
